Sopra Steria selected as Airbus’ referenced supplier for its engineering and functional design activities

Paris, July 19, 2022 – Sopra Steria, a European Tech leader recognised for its consulting, digital services and software development, today announced that it has been selected, through its Aeroline vertical, as one of Airbus’s referenced partners for engineering and functional design activities.

After the EMES3 listing announced in January, covering all engineering activities for all Airbus Group divisions, Sopra Steria confirms its expertise by winning several major contracts within the design office and flight test at Airbus. Sopra Steria has been appointed referenced supplier for Airbus's engineering and manufacturing activities, therefore providing an innovative offer covering the full value chain, as well as addressing the group's transformation requirements. This listing applies to all activities and is a major step in Sopra Steria’s ambition for its engineering services and its ability to deploy a comprehensive offer.

Sopra Steria's Aeroline vertical, dedicated to the aeronautics sector, has been selected specifically for the design and deployment of systems engineering methods and tools, support for research and optimisation of aircraft maintenance procedures, studies and simulations, and support for the design, development and deployment of testing tools.

"We are immensely proud to have been selected as one of the preferred partners for Airbus's engineering activities and to guide them in their transformation. Sopra Steria's engineering is entering a new era. After EMES3, this new appointment is a major step for us, illustrating our ability to operate not only as a digital partner, but also as a business partner, positioning us as a global provider operating across the full value chain in aeronautics.”, says Xavier Pecquet, member of Sopra Steria’s Group Executive Committee.
