

Truffle 100: Sopra Steria ranks second among the top French software developers for 2017

Paris, 15 May 2017 – Sopra Steria has once again taken second place in the 13th annual Truffle 100 ranking, which analyses key French software developers.

"We are thrilled to have reaffirmed our position in the Truffle 100 ranking, which is a benchmark indicator in the software industry. This industry recognition confirms the effectiveness of our strategy, through which we strive to continuously improve our software solutions in order to help our customers make their digital transformation a success", says Vincent Paris, Sopra Steria Managing Director.

Software development is a strategic priority for Sopra Steria, and is backed by more than 40 years of expertise within the group. Today, income from software solutions makes up 15% of group turnover, and is expected to reach 20% by 2020. Sopra Steria designs and rolls out high-performing application solutions offering the latest expertise and cutting-edge information technology to boost customer development. Sopra Steria's software solutions are leading the way in their respective markets and they enable its customers to excel in three major areas:

- Financial services (Sopra Banking Software), with a software suite used by more than 800 customers in 75 countries.
- Human resources (Sopra HR Software), with a range of solutions covering HR information system requirements, rolled out in more than 850 customers in 54 countries.
- Real estate, with property management solutions for the French market.
